Pipeline class stresses safety

The Kansas Pipeline Association hosted a Pipeline Emergency Response and Damage Prevention training event for local first responders Feb. 6 at the Kingman County Activity Center. Representatives from pipeline companies with lines running through or near Kingman County attended. Such training offers responders and operators an opportunity to meet and get to know each other before an incident or emergency occurs. Safety procedures were reviewed and the training included playing out a short exercise of a simulated incident in the City of Kingman. About 45 people attended the event, which included a meal.
